

Army Camp Cachets

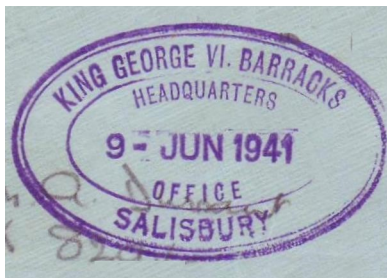

Although Southern Rhodesia is perhaps best known for its range of RAF Camp cachets, there was a considerable army presence within the country. The Rhodesia Regiment had its headquarters at King George VI Barracks in Salisbury but it also had training Camps in other towns particularly Umtali but also Bulawayo and Gwelo. It is also reported that there was an army presence in Gatooma but no cachets have been recorded for units in this town.

The Rhodesian African Rifles were based at Borrowdale Camp near Salisbury and The Paymaster, Permanent Forces was also based in Salisbury. It has therefore been decided to group these cachets under these four towns.

Further details of all these units can be found in Memoir 17.
