Craig earned a reputation as one of the greatest names in the world of contemporary wildlife art. He achieved his success through a combination of hard work and dedication to the study of animals in their natural habitats. He spent his childhood in the bush of Africa, where he developed a strong interest in wildlife and began painting. He was wounded whilst serving with the Rhodesian Light Infantry and was lucky to survive. After which he decided to pursue a career as a full-time artist, specialising in wildlife art. He lived in Florida but also worked from his studio in the African bush, sketching and photographing the wildlife around him. He travels extensively throughout Botswana, Namibia and Zimbabwe, capturing the feel of wild Africa.
